

Partial Abolition of Card-Ration System Decried in Soviet Russia

DEFLATION OF SOVIET RUBLE IS OBJECTIVE

New Policy Follows 50 Per Cent. Increase in Price of Commodities

MOSCOW, May 12.—Deflation of the currency, abolition of rationing and building up of private trade were seen as principal objectives of the decree partially abolishing the rationing system in Russia.

The decree, issued by Premier Molotov and Joseph Stalin, led to the abolition of rationing, abolition of the rationing system on everything from food, fuel and other building materials. The new policy followed a 50 per cent increase in the price of many commodities.

It is expected to deflate the Russian currency by making available at high prices clothes, shoes and other necessities from the sale of which the government expects to relieve millions of rubles and thus obviate further issues of paper money.

The government hopes that it practically will do away with the private trader and build up trade in increased prices, with large profits for the government.

Grain Marketing During War Years Reviewed in House

"Did Farmers Receive All Money Owing to Them Through Sale of Wheat?" Opposition Members Ask

Ottawa, Ont., May 12.—Humbly of the war years when Canada's grain crops were marketed under government supervision were heard in the House of Commons Tuesday. Did the farmers receive all the money owing to them through the sale of wheat to allied countries by the board of grain supervisors, was the question propounded by opposition members.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, promised to furnish himself with all available information and suggested the particular item in the departmental estimates be allowed to stand until time had been taken to deal with administrative costs of the Canada Grain Act.

First-hand information as to how the scheme worked during the war, was given by Robert Rogers, who was a minister in the Board government. A trade price of $2.51 was set both by Canada and United States, he said.

There had been unreported rumors that the ministry of the day or the government had lost $50,000,000. The 75,000,000 bushels of wheat on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange at prices above the set figure, Mr. Rogers said. Those rumors were false, but he believed the whole situation needed clarifying.

Correspondence written by Sir George Porter, minister of trade and commerce in the Board government, was introduced into the discussion by Dr. P. T. Donnelly (Lib., Winnipeg). He said that the Board had been set up to regulate the export of grain to the United States and to the United Kingdom. He said that the Board had been set up to regulate the export of grain to the United States and to the United Kingdom. He said that the Board had been set up to regulate the export of grain to the United States and to the United Kingdom.

HENRY COTTON ASSUMES LEAD BRITISH GOLF

Turns in Card of 70 for the First Round Southport Tournament

SOUTHPORT, Eng., May 12.—Henry Cotton, young British professional, led early finishers in the first round of the $7,500 Southport professional golf tournament with a card of 70.

Bye Shorrock, another British pro, had a 71. W. H. Davis, one of the British Ryder team, matched the 70 of Tony Masera and Joe Tarnan, United States, but George Duncan who has been playing off the usual time all spring, could do no better than an 80.

Tomaso Cupla, the Argentine open champion, who qualified with 83, continued his fine play today and did a 72. Hector Prescott, his compatriot, fell off badly and had an 80.

Horton Smith, the gall Missourian, impressively moved into a tie for second place with Rastebrook when he brought in a card of 71. Joe Martin had a 72.

Mario Chirio, the Argentine, scored a 72, placing him well up for the first round.

Romulo, Vassana and the South American played under conditions much more difficult than those which greeted the early morning starters. The wind embroiled them and occasional showers falling during their round. Smith battled bravely through a threatening rain, sending bouncing drives to within six plying distance, and then putting with deadly accuracy. He was his humble only to lose 100, where his low, wind-clearing drive caught his hands, and he lost five for the hole. He held a long putt for a birdie three at the home hole to partly make up for his lapse.

Only a first round score: Hutan Stewart, 72; Ted Day, 72; Bronis Kozmin, 72; Percy Allen, 78; Alex Mitchell, 76; Charles Whitcombe, 71, and Aubrey Boonny, 71.

The Osborne Stock

was acquired at a low rate on the dollar

The number of reservations being placed each day for the Osborne suits by the business and professional men of Edmonton is perhaps the most convincing evidence of the remarkable clothes value presented in this liquidation. Practically the whole range is made up of individual suit-lengths . . . every one a different pattern . . . making them thoroughly exclusive.

Osborne's prices were $65 to $85. During this liquidation your choice La Fleche tailored to your order at $32, $37, $42, $40, a few slightly higher.

You profit both in quality and in low cost. Selection should be made at the earliest possible moment.

During the night, but Wednesday the troops were under orders to kill and the scene was quiet. Damage there from the fire was estimated at half a million dollars.

Orders to shoot to kill were passed on by the monarch and Spanish republicans to troops guarding Roman Catholic property as fighting broke out. There was shooting in many places, more churches and convents were burned, and there were many casualties.

A mob which formed during the evening at Cordoba rallied ammunition stores and fought with civil guards defending the convent of Santo Domingo. Four monks were killed and between 20 and 30 wounded gravely. The civil guard saved the convent from being burned and when martial law was declared the situation became quieter.

for the action. All church institutions at Valencia were abandoned as a preliminary. Intervention of government forces at Valencia, Balhago, Cartagena, Arco de St. Francisco and Benitochek struck on church property there.

Arrests of Communists and Monarchists continued, the government charging the two elements, usually antagonistic, with collusion in the rioting. The intervention of government troops all the mischief to the Communists and charged the government agents with needlessly attacking the Monarchists.

In Madrid the faithful took advantage of the reduced quiet today to show their devotion. Churches were crowded with worshippers and some priests were being hiding from the storm, appeared on the streets.

PRIMATE LEAVES

Pedro Cardenal Segura y Bana, primate of Spain, was learned Wednesday to have fled from Toledo Tuesday in a motor car followed by a police escort. In some quarters his pastoral visit spanning Spanish Roman Catholicism to defend the church was blamed for the outbreaks which have resulted in possibly two more churches and church buildings being destroyed since Sunday.

Today will be the last Wednesday of the season to be traded actively to legislation approved by the government. It is expected that government action will take precedence over motions and bills placed on the order paper by private members.

Every effort is being made to secure the Chinese market for Canada wheat. Mr. Stevens declared earlier Tuesday. China, especially in the north, offered an excellent market for Canadian grain and other products. This might not materialize in the immediate future, but it is a good return. It depended largely upon the return in stability of the country and general improvement in conditions.

SICK WOMAN

Monday morning, the patient, who is suffering from blood poisoning, is showing a slight improvement, although she is still in a critical condition.

An unnamed Indian runner is given credit for bringing the mercy place to the woman, and the chief thinking of a 25-year-old mother named Mrs. McLeod given birth to a still-born child. She lives 100 miles away from the rough cabin in which the woman lay, was the nearest point at which the call for assistance could be sent to Edmonton, and Mrs. McLeod's husband, a Canadian runner with a message asking for a provident department of health for aid.

Monday day and night the runner made the 100-mile journey in record time, and when the message was received at the government buildings in Edmonton it was communicated to the Canadian Airways with a request that the nearest plane be sent. With "Wop" May at the controls, and Pilot Walter Gilbert accompanying him, the plane took off from Watrous on Sunday, but the condition was such that it was not possible to land at the rough cabin Tuesday. On the long trip down the river, the plane was forced to land on the river Harry Shaw, got on a ranch call through to Howard and McLeod and a last company to be handed when May landed.

The sick woman had to be carried from the plane which was moored about a foot from the shore and was in his place four and the mechanic in his harness ready to get into the ready for the arrival of the ambulance.

The car from Howard and McLeod sped across the second half of the course and came down over the bank right to the edge of the water. The two mechanics aided by the ambulance men, and two hooligans, Jimmy Smith and Frank Wilson carried the woman to the car from the cabin of the plane.

Capt. May made the flight as pilot for the Commercial Airways.

"What was your trip like," May was asked.

"Terrible. The smoke was three times as thick as it is here. We were going to follow the steel compass but we changed our minds," he said.

"The steel compass?"

"Yes, the Northern Alberta Railway line—the steel compass was all right," he countered.

The fire was thick, one every three miles it smoked. The country seemed to be burning up as we came down from McMurray to Edmonton. No, we didn't follow the line," said Wop, "but ended east over Smoky Lake to see if we could escape the smoke. Yet, the whole country is alive with hot rolling fire. There's not enough continued bush for the flames to travel very far. But still enough to hinder quick firing with the heavy smoke. We left McMurray at 1:30 this afternoon and sighted Edmonton at 7:30. I thought earlier times that we had lost our way, the smoke was so thick," he concluded.

After the woman had been whisked away to the hospital May and the other men returned to the Highland clubhouse to refresh themselves. They were drinking their water in their waders as they stepped into their car, a few minutes later.

The forthcoming trip, which was scheduled to be made on a last plane, is being postponed because of the outbreak of the Spanish flu and it is contemplated that an experimental mail schedule of five days will be established between the capitals of Europe and the continent.

The RECORD SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

It is an axiom in sport that "records are made to be broken." Turets, however, seem to be the only cigarettes that hold Turret's record of quality and break Turret's record for popularity.

After all, nothing can replace good, honest tobacco; grown and ripened right out in the field under nature's own sunlight—nothing artificial about that—and the high quality is "inbred."

DOROTHY DIX

"I Don't See Any Use in Getting All Hot and Bothered About the Younger Generation, They Will Work Out Their Own Salvation"

A correspondent asks: "Do you think the boys and girls of today are going to the dogs?"

No. Certainly not. Far from it. Of course, they are doing plenty of wrong and foolish things, but so have every other generation of youngsters, and they will eventually muddle through as all their predecessors have done, and in the end make the kind of men and women that carry on civilization, even as their forefathers and mothers have.

And I have this opinion not on theory but on the hundred thousand or more letters that I get every year from girls and boys who open their hearts to me and tell me of their perplexities and temptations and their hopes and aims and ambitions. And the things that strike me most in these letters are the high courage and the sense of duty they display, and the groping of even the most feeblest after something worthwhile to cling to, some rock principle on which to set their feet.

It is a characteristic of age that it believes itself infallible and that when it discloses wisdom will perish with the latest mode of the criticism of the younger generation is based on the fact that older generations have never prevailed, and that the boys and girls of today do things that their parents and their grandmothers did not do.

The idea that young people are hurtling straight to destruction seems to be a hereditary belief with each succeeding generation. Not long ago I was looking over an old issue of the magazine that was published in the fifties. It was full of funny old-fashioned pictures of ladies in hoop skirts and gentlemen in top-hats, and the editor had written about how things in the future would be. It was one article so up-to-date that it might have been lifted today from any current magazine of the day. It was about the younger generation and it was a very wise one. It was written by a man who was a failure in business and it pointed out how lacking in manners and morals it was and it ended with the most dismal prediction of what would happen in this country when it fell into the hands of these wretches.

Yet these old young dogs of whom their elders thought so badly were our parents and our grandmothers, and they seem to have given a pretty good account of themselves. At any rate, they didn't scuttle the ship of state, but sailed it on to a prosperity and greatness of which their detractors never even dreamed.

So I, for one, lay no stock in the cracking about the youngsters. I have seen too many had little boys that all the neighbors were sure would end on the gallows turn into leading citizens and pillars of the community. I have seen too many feisty little rascals who slanted their in their slippers and who didn't seem to have an idea on earth about party frocks turn into the most sedate and thrifty of men and with a noddy baby with just as good a grace as they ever lugged around a ballroom floor.

Still another count against the youngsters of today is that they defy their parents and do not obey them and generally refuse to show them the respect that they should. Perhaps that never in the history of the world were there so many girls and boys supporting their parents and the younger members of the family as now, and if that isn't honoring their father and their mother and doing

HOME AT LAST

Oh, sing a song of home, my dear: Of home and nothing more. No other place so precious is The white, great, wide world out:

It doesn't matter in the least how plain and simple it is if it is truly home. No one has a more modern home than Danny Meadow Mouse. A great many people would turn up their noses at it. But to Danny and to Nancy Meadow Mouse it is the most beautiful place in all the Great World and they would not change with any one. No, sir, they wouldn't. Danny said so. Nancy says so. Both mean it.

Just how beautiful and precious it is to Danny never fully realized until he thought he never would see it again. You know he had made up his mind that he never would go back there again without Nancy, whom he had lost on the way back from Farmer Brown's barn. So when Danny's father brought him a message from Nancy saying that he never would see her again unless he had near enough to come home, Danny didn't stop long enough to be polite and thank Danny's father. He just started off as fast as his short legs would take him. Danny understood and simple laughing.

Danny was in such a hurry that he forgot to say "Good-bye" to his mother. He was in such a hurry to get home to see Nancy once more—that he hurried along without any effort to keep out of sight. He was lucky, very lucky for Danny, that none of his relatives happened to be about just then. If they had, it was a sure thing that Danny never would have reached his home.

But it was nothing happened at all, out of breath, so long that he was almost ready to drop. Danny Meadow Mouse reached the place in the Green Meadows where his old home had been, and followed one of the familiar private little paths straight to where he and Nancy had built their house of straw long before they moved to the cornfield to see Farmer Brown's corn. Danny was so eager to find something of that old home that he didn't expect to find any more. Just imagine how surprised he was to find a new house already built.

"Well," said a squeaky little voice "it's about time you came home. Where have you been. I should like to know."

At the sound of that voice a great jump came up into Danny's throat. A jump of joy. "Oh, Nancy!" was all he could say.

Of course, it was Nancy's voice he had heard. A minute later she peeped out from the half-built house.

The wheat market was quiet and the price of wheat was quoted at 100 cents for the May 13 contract. The price of wheat was 100 cents for the May 13 contract.
